PRESS RELEASE

Professor of Geography receives Fulbright U.S. Global Scholar Award to Austria, Japan, and Chile

The U.S. Department of State and the Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board are pleased to announce that Dr. Fausto O. Sarmiento, professor of mountain science and director of the Neotropical Montology Collaboratory in the Department of Geography, has received a Fulbright U.S. Global Scholar award to Austria, Japan and Chile. Sarmiento will research and lecture at the Institute for Interdisciplinary Mountain Research of the Austrian Academy of Sciences, the World Heritage Studies UNESCO Chair of Cultural Heritage and sacred mountains at the University of Tsukuba in Japan, and the Institute of Environmental Sciences and Evolution, Laboratory of Territorial Studies of the Austral University of Chile in Valdivia, as part of a project to establish a worldwide network of montology, the convergent, transdisciplinary mountain science. Sarmiento will be researching and lecturing abroad, spending about two months in each country studying the graticule needed to expand geoecological work in altitudinal, longitudinal, and latitudinal realities.

The Global Scholar award will be used to promote activities to enliven montology by developing a global network of montologists working towards restoration of mountainscapes. As a Fulbright Scholar, Sarmiento will share the imperative of creating an Institute for Convergent Mountain Science with the establishment of a professional network for 1) training and development of young scholars and graduate students on themes of tropical mountain conservation; 2) implementing collaborative research for mountain sustainable and regenerative development; and 3) engaging the general public in a better appreciation of decolonial mountain landscapes. Furthermore, he plans to share new narratives about mountain science from transdisciplinary angles and push the prominent role of the International Geographical Union’s Commission of Mountain Studies as chair.
