GEOGRAPHY OPEN HOUSE IN REVIEW

Last week, UGA Geography hosted our first ever Homecoming Open House and our second annual Faculty Honors Reception. We thoroughly enjoyed welcoming faculty, alumni, and students to the event. Among those in attendance included the Dean of Franklin College of Arts & Sciences, Dr. Alan Dorsey, accompanied by Associate Dean, Dr. Paula Lemons and Associate Dean Dr. Thomas Mote. Highlights of the event included our Faculty Honors Reception which honored Dr. Marshall Shepherd for receiving SEC Professor of the Year and Dr. Fausto Sarmiento for being named a Fullbright Global Scholar. Our event also included a walking tour which showcased Geography's Green Roof, Weather Climate Station, Center for Geospatial Research, and Weather Broadcast Studio. Thank you to everyone made this event possible-- We can't wait for next year's Homecoming Open House!

Faculty Honors Reception attendees enjoy remarks by Dr. Alan Dorsey, Dr. Paula Lemons, Dr. Hilda Kurtz and Dr. Thomas Mote honoring Dr. Marshall Shepherd & Dr. Fausto Sarmiento for their achievements of SEC Professor of the Year and Fullbright Global Scholar, respectively.

UGA Urban Agriculture intern Abbey Lauterbach discusses the various horticultural and sustainability projects on the Geography building's Green Roof.
